

9 in Senegal to Be Jailed for 8 Years

By Lydia Polgreen

Jan. 8, 2009

DAKAR, Senegal Nine men were handed harsh sentences of eight years in prison after being tried on charges of conspiracy and “unnatural acts,” a term used to criminalize homosexuality, according to their lawyers and gay rights groups here on Thursday.

The men were arrested on Dec. 19 at the home of Diadji Diouf, a prominent gay activist who works with AIDS organizations to prevent the spread of the disease in the largely clandestine gay community in Senegal, according to Jöel Nana, a program associate for the International Gay and Lesbian Human Rights Commission.

Subscribe to The Times to read as many articles as you like.
nytimes.com/subscription

9 in Senegal to Be Jailed for 8 Years

By Lydia Polgreen

Jan. 8, 2009

DAKAR, Senegal Nine men were handed harsh sentences of eight years in prison after being tried on charges of conspiracy and “unnatural acts,” a term used to criminalize homosexuality, according to their lawyers and gay rights groups here on Thursday.

The men were arrested on Dec. 19 at the home of Diadji Diouf, a prominent gay activist who works with AIDS organizations to prevent the spread of the disease in the largely clandestine gay community in Senegal, according to Jöel Nana, a program associate for the International Gay and Lesbian Human Rights Commission.

Subscribe to The Times to read as many articles as you like.
nytimes.com/subscription